1967 The Orient, struggling along in Division III

What makes a Soccer club sick?

AN EXPRESS INQUIRY BY JAMES DAVIES

CONSIDER the case of Orient, previously Leyton Orient, before that Clapton Orient.

There they were in 1962, jousting with Manchester United, Arsenal, Everton, and Spurs in the First Division of the Football League.

Here they are in 1967, helping to prop up Division III, fighting for financial life, wondering whether a move to the new-town of Basildon might be a cure for their ills.

Soccer sickness has overtaken the club. It has happened elsewhere . . . to Northampton, who soared from Division III to Division I, and back again just as quickly.

To Notts County, oldest professional club in the world, who paraded the great Tommy Lawton and 40,000 crowds in the 1950's—and last Saturday were knocked out of the F.A. Cup by non-Leaguers Runcorn.

Just why does a Soccer club go sick? The Daily Express has put its finger on Orient's pulse to find the answer.

Today, a close study of the club's decline since the cheers of 1962.

Tomorrow, an analysis of the reasons for the fall.
